

★ SOLARIMPULSE ACROSS AMERICA ★

An idea born in Switzerland

Celebrating the Flight of Solar Impulse

You are cordially invited to an evening with

General John R. Dailey USMC (Ret.)
Director of the National Air and Space Museum and
His Excellency Manuel Sager
Ambassador of Switzerland to the United States to celebrate the flight of

Solar Impulse

- the first plane to fly day and night using no fuel -

at the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum

* * * *

Guests of Honor

Bertrand Piccard and André Borschberg
Founders of Solar Impulse

When: Thursday, June 20, 2013
7:00 PM

Where: National Air and Space Museum (National Mall)
Smithsonian Institution
Independence Avenue and 6th Street, S.W.
Washington, D.C.

Complimentary parking available at the Museum's Fourth Street garage.

RSVP: Please RSVP by June 11th
To RSVP or for more information, please contact senmi@eda.admin.ch